featured region: maipo valley, chile

the central valleys of chile run west-east from the pacific ocean to the andes mountains. the isolated terrain has prevented phylloxera in all of chile allowing vines to be grown on their own rootstock, unlike most other wine growing regions of the world. maipo valley is chile's oldest and most famous wine region. cabernet sauvignon is the most celebrated variety in maipo, covering over 1/2 of the vineyard acreage.
